ABSTRACT

Amaluddin, 2022 "Fourth-Semester Students' Perception of Online Speaking Class: Participation and Interaction" (A Qualitative Study of English Education Department Student at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar). Supervised by Eny Syatriana and Hijrah.

This study aimed to discover students' perception of online speaking classes particularly about students' participation and classroom interaction using a qualitative descriptive method. The subjects of this study were fourth-semester students of the English Education Study Program, Faculty of Teacher Training and Education, University of Muhammadiyah Makassar. The study used interviews as an instrument to collect in this study.

Based on the results of the study, student participation in taking online speaking classes is very high; this can be seen from the activeness of students in participating starting from a high level of attendance, preparing before entering class, being active in class discussions, contributing to group assignments, and being active in their abilities, improved communication. In addition, students have a positive perspective on class interactions. This can be proven by the existence of various types of interactions during this online speaking class.

Keywords: Students' Perception, Participation, Interaction, Online Speaking.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

A. Background

The first notion of online learning was originally introduced by The University of Phoenix in 1989. Kentnor (2015) says that at the first emergence, the university used CompuServe, one of the first online information services. Although it seems old, this type of distance learning did not popular and globally used until coronavirus hit the earth at the end of 2019. During this pandemic, many countries were experiencing a whole "new" concept of education. Especially in Indonesia, where its Ministry of Education and Culture asked people to do social distancing. The schools, universities, and other educational institutions were forced to close and were urged to conduct the online learning system, which soon people become familiar with online learning. As the result, all teachers and students had to possess digital devices such as smartphones, laptops, or personal computers.

As one of distance learning, the online class is distinct from traditional or conventional class. Allen and Seaman (2011) define online learning is referred to a system where 80% of the subject content is delivered online and the class is typically occurred not in face-to-face form. In line with that, Pohan (2020) states that online learning is a type of learning where it is conducted through the internet in which both teacher and learner are not physically met. This eliminates the distance boundaries that happen in in-person classes and offers not only teachers but also the student a new experience in the teaching-learning process.

Since the place of interaction between teachers and students has changed, the way they communicate in the classroom also changed. Johnson, Arago, and Shaik (2000) conducted research comparing online and traditional face-to-face instructor and student interaction. They found that student-to-student interaction is better in conventional in-person classes because students have more space to share experiences, a sense of community, and be able to work in a group. Besides, the study found that the interaction between teacher and student in an online class is less effective since students do not get clear instructions, are not informed about their progress, do not have interaction outside of the class, and do not have good communication during the class. Generally, good interaction will lead to a successful and achieving learning experience.

In addition, a major key point to achieving high academic performances is students' participation in the classroom. Participation can be perceived as an active involvement in the teaching-learning process which can be categorized into five evident classifications, namely, attendance, preparation, contribution to discussion, group works, and communication skills (Ahmad, 2021). Moreover, Student's participation varies ranging from simply stepping into or attending the class to verbally giving questions or answering others'. This is undoubtedly essential for the class to gain a positive atmosphere of supportive education. In an online-speaking-class design, participation can encourage the class to actively engage. Parks-Stamm, Zafonte, and Palenque in Ahmad (2021) find that over 70% of students who took a part in their research noticed their participation contribute positive impacts on their learning and also discussed the value of other students' comments on their learning.

Accordingly, the existence of online media in the form of applications and software has transformed the learning process from conventional classes to online classes, ways of interacting, and ways of communicating both between students and students and students and teachers. This shift leads to a new approach to the teaching-learning process that enables teachers and students to set up a class from different places such as home and office. This change is a new experience, especially in English speaking class setting. Despite speaking class relying and emphasizing more on direct verbal communication, the virtual class offers completely the opposite. Thus, this study is proposed to find out how students' perception of learning English through the internet (online), especially English speaking classes. Additionally, the researcher hopes that the results of this study will contribute to the education of Indonesia in the future.

B. Problem Statement

Based on the explanation above, the researcher formulated three questions:

1. What is students' perception of online participation in English Speaking classes at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar?
2. What is students' perception of online interaction in English Speaking classes at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar?

C. The objective of the Study

The objectives of the research were to discover:

1. To find out students' perception of online participation in English speaking classes at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar?

2. To find out students' perception of online interaction in English speaking classes at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar?

D. Significance of the Study

The researcher expected that the findings would be beneficial for;

1. Lectures and teachers, the outcomes of the research can be a supportive reference in building and creating the main activities of the learning process in online learning, especially speaking class, which is more rewarding and achievable to all students.
2. Students, it is expected that they can find out the result of this study as a reflection to get a better learning experience in the future.
3. Readers or future researchers, the researcher hopes that this study can be a helpful piece of information or reference that can assist future researchers.

E. Scope of the Study

The research took place in the English Department of Muhammadiyah Makassar University, particularly for fourth-semester students who have been taught and have experienced speaking distance learning through virtual classes. In addition, as the title of this study is "Fourth Semester Students' Perspective of Online Speaking Class: Participation and Interaction" the study was specified to only focus on Students' perception of participation and interaction in the Speaking for the Advance course.

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

A. Previous Related Research

There was some research that investigated the same area, as stated below:

First, the research was conducted at the University of Prof. Dr. Hazairin, SH. by Rakhmanina (2020) investigates students' perception of online English learning during the covid-19 pandemic. The results of this study indicate that most students are interested in online learning. Online learning is considered to be more fun and flexible. In terms of the platform that is the medium for implementing online learning itself, the WhatsApp application is considered the best or dominant application and is very helpful for online learning during the pandemic. Therefore, this data proves that the research respondents had positive perceptions of online learning during the Covid-19 pandemic.

Different from that, Yulini (2020) finds out that the weakness of online learning is a lack of understanding of the explanation from the teacher, and the students saw the material from the handphone, and make they do not understand the material. The advantage is the students are more focused on the internet than on reading the book. The result shows that the eighth-grade class students at MTS Tsanawiah Morella, answer the question from the researcher bout their perception of online learning, many students choose offline learning over online learning. Because they think that learning from offline learning makes them more understand the material than online learning. Based on the research, the students feel bored with online learning.

Furthermore, Fitria, Bandung, and Kadri (2020) in their study bring the general concept of students' responses to online learning in speaking class. In addition, the researchers employed mix method where qualitative and quantitative data were collected together. To acquire the data, there were 20 prepared questions disseminated to 83 random sample students. The findings of the research show that most of the students do not like the online speaking format. This can be proved by the number of question items chosen by the students. 14 out of 20 items were selected as "disagreed" which indicates that the samples prefer face-to-face classes over online speaking classes. According to the findings, the majority of the students felt online class did not enhance their speaking competence due to some factors, namely, unstable internet connection, and supportive devices, some of them also feel comfortable delivering opinions in person.

Lastly, Tirtanawati, Salsabila, and Purnama (2021) in their descriptive qualitative study entitled "English students perception on the use of Whatsapp group in speaking class," the study aim to find out english students' perception of the use of WhatsApp Group in speaking class and to find out english students challenges on the use of WhatsApp Group in speaking class. The participant of this research was 35 students in the third semester of the English Education Department academic year of 2020/2021 in IKIP PGRI Bojonegoro. The result showed that students' perception of the use of WhatsApp Group in speaking class is less interesting and less effective. Their challenges with the use of WhatsApp Group are an internet connection, feeling bored and lazy, difficulty understanding the materials and the time is not according to the schedule. online learning using WhatsApp Group in speaking class needs more interesting learning activities.

The previous related research above and this present study have the same aspect of the study. This research, in one big point, focuses on obtaining students' perception of EFL online classes. At the same time, the present research is distinct from the other relevant studies because it focuses on gaining English students' fourth-semester perception of the online speaking class setting as they have experienced the online speaking class itself. Besides, This study also chooses a specific course namely Speaking for Advance as a part of the study.

B. Some Pertinent Ideas

There are several relevant concepts of this research that can support the topic of the research.

1. Perception

a. Definition

In the writing of A Brief Introduction to Perception, Qiong (2017) states that perception is the process of attaining awareness or understanding of sensory information. The word "perception" derives from the Latin words perceptio, percipio, and means "receiving, collecting, action of taking possession, and apprehension with the mind or senses." On the other hand, Noë (2004) said that Perception is something that happens because of an individual's action. It is a result of action and not something that happens inside of an individual. "Perception is not something that happens to us, or in us. It is something we do." The definition above gives one big conspectus which narrows down to the same traits that perception has a strong relationship with an individual's experience to gain information.

b. Perception Process

Qiong (2017) suggests that there are three sequential stages of the perception process: selection, organization, and interpretation.

1) Selection

The first stage of the perception process is selection in which an individual transforms the available stimulation into a meaningful experience. Because life provides a lot of information on a daily basis, a person might not capable to handle all the information. Hence, He has to choose the information through this first stage.

2) Organization

After selecting the environment stimuli, an individual will proceed to the second stage which is organization. The idea of this stage is to categorize all the selected information such as things, animals, places, or people into a meaningful pattern. This will lead a person to associate something or someone with structure, shape, texture, color, and so on. Within this stage, an individual will gain general knowledge about the stimuli.

3) Interpretation

In this stage, all the categorized information will be interpreted and will have meaning. When a person gets a piece of information he tends to label the information. This "attaching" process may differ from others because it is highly influenced by someone's culture. For Instance, students who do not live in English-speaking countries will perceive English as a skill, while some students who live in the USA, Australia, and the UK, will not see English as an ability.

c. Types of Perception

One's perception, in social life context, can be divided to two types, positive and negative Irwanto (2002). Positive perception is all the information that someone has as a response and describes the willingness to support and use the knowledge or perceived objects. On the other hand, negative perception is all the information of someone that not related with the perceived objects. This will be indicated with passive action or even rejection. Therefore, it can be identified that perception is both positive and the negative always have impact to someone in doing something. Either positive or negative perception all depends on how people describe all their knowledge about an object that is perceived.

d. The Importance of Student's Perception

Students' perception can highly influence their motivation in class especially in learning English. Rahmiyanti, Zaim, and Refnaldi (2020) in their study entitled "Students' Perception on Teacher's Teaching Strategy and Its Effect Toward Students' Motivation in Learning English" revealed that The results showed that students' perception of teacher's teaching strategy was High on teaching strategy for writing skill, reading skill, listening skill, grammar, and vocabulary and Very High on teaching strategy for speaking skill. Then, based on the statistical analysis, the teaching strategy had a significant effect on students' motivation in learning English as General Subject.

Based on the explanations of perception above, it can be related to the process of learning where the students gain information through experience and become part of one's storage of facts. In other words, students can have a perception of something if they have experienced the process as mentioned by Forgas. Thus, the way the students perceive the teacher's language use in the classroom may significantly affect the students' academic performance.

2. Online Learning

a. Definition

Pohan (2020) states that online learning is a type of learning where it is conducted through the internet in which both teacher and learner are not physically met. On the other hand, Allen and Seaman (2011) define online learning is referred to as a system where 80% of the subject content is delivered online and the class typically occurred not in face-to-face form. Accordingly, based on the medium and the way teacher and student attend the class, it can be defined that online learning is a type of education system that which both student and teacher organize the class utilizing the technology and the internet as the place to hold the teaching-learning activities.

b. Forms of Online Learning

The types of online learning availability, it is further classified into three forms: synchronous, asynchronous, and hybrid learning (Amiti, 2020).

1) Synchronous learning

The synchronous method takes a place in real-time with a teacher providing live interaction with students in the learning process. Amiti (2020) implies that both instructors and learners should attend the class simultaneously, they should gather online via a provided platform or software, and cooperate just as they do in a traditional classroom. This form of learning is facilitated by electronic media that is capable to handle many people in different places at the same time. Dung (2020) mentions that synchronous learning enables to reach a larger amount of students who wish to attend the course and, at the same time, a teacher can deliver the course to a large number of students who need to access the class from distance. Besides, Dhawan (2020) says that as synchronous learning requires teachers and students to meet at the same time, there is a possibility for students to get instant feedback. In conclusion, it is a more structured learning strategy, where the courses are scheduled at specific times and in live virtual classroom settings.

2) Asynchronous Learning

The asynchronous method is the opposite, the teacher-student interaction occurs without specific and appointed class time. Dhawan (2020) suggests that this type of online learning is not properly organized. In addition, it adopts the idea of a self-centered education style. Dung (2020) explains that in doing the class work and assignments, learners become more self-directed. However, all the assignments and class activities should be accomplished in a time frame (Amiti, 2020). Students are benefited from this as asynchronous learning gives them the flexibility to access the subject material and work and comfortably suits their availability on time and location.

3) Hybrid Learning

This kind of online learning is a mixed method of synchronous and asynchronous online courses. Dung (2020) states that hybrid offers students to attend classes in both in-person and online settings. It entails the course to be conducted in traditional classroom form during the semester and facilitated virtual course interaction somewhere between the face-to-face classes. Besides, Gil et al. (2022) imply that hybrid or blended, are different terms that refer to the same concept. They also mention that hybrid refers to a combination of a regular face-to-face class, physical meetings, and technology-mediated learning via digital platforms or resources. To sum up, Hybrid learning is a sort of “blended” method that can be delivered both synchronous and asynchronous, and with direct or virtual interaction.

3. Students' Participation in Classroom

a. Definition

Participation in the classroom has a broad definition, for it is not just raising hands, it can be seen in many distinct ways. Namini and Simanjalam (2008) define students' participation in the English classroom as students' engagement with not only their classmates but also their teachers in form of asking and giving questions, commenting, and joining the class discussions.

b. Types of Students' Participation

In addition, Participation can be perceived as an active involvement in the teaching-learning process which can be categorized into five evident classifications, namely, attendance, preparation, contribution to discussion, group works, and communication skills (Ahmad, 2021).

1) Attendance

Attending the class for a certain period of time is a basic thing of school concept. In order to be able to understand a subject, students are required to stick to the class schedule until the end of the semester. Additionally, as a part of active participation, joining the class can help teachers assess students' academic performance. Attending class is essential. the class allows teachers to have the time tracking students' progress and make better decisions that can help them do better in the next class and in their future careers.

2) Preparation

Students' participation does not only occur during the class meeting. Good preparation before the class is also part of active engagement. For instance, a pupil who always runs late for school may not be able to concentrate and perform better than the one who always enters the class in time. On the other hand, preparation is a clear indication that learners are ready to receive the information.

3) Contribution to Discussion

Contributing to the class discussion is an important part of building a positive atmosphere. In general, context, contributing to discussion means that students willingly speak up by asking questions, commenting, and responding. Discussion is an effective strategy to improve students' creative thinking ability as well as their critical thinking. On the other side, EFL speaking classes can help learners to encourage their confidence and train their brains to be familiar with English. This is an obvious feature of active learning that a student that does not attractively talk or participate in the discussion is most likely considered a passive learner.

4) Contribution to Group Work

A learner is an individual that needs to work side by side in reaching the class goals. This goal can be acquired by cooperatively working together as a group. Teachers, some of the time, divide and assign students into several groups with work to do. The aim of group work is to shape students' teamwork skills. And over time, it will develop students' communication and collaboration competencies which also, surely affect students' tremendous academic success.

5) Communication Skill

There are many varieties of communication skills starting from asking and giving questions to delivering an oral presentation in front of the class. Proper communication skills promote students' participation in the classroom and help them to sharpen their capabilities in responding to others' ideas and defending their own points of view. This can drive students to extend their knowledge, understanding, and interpretation. As a result, building decent communication in class can lead to high-class interaction and academic achievement.

c. The Importances

Parks-Stamm, Zafonte, and Palenque in Ahmad (2021) find that over 70% of students who took a part in their research noticed their participation contribute positive impacts on their learning and also discussed the value of other students' comments on their learning. The learners also mentioned that classroom participation is required to improve their learning experiences which narrow down to five aspects; develops class engagement; assists learners' memory and recall of information; confirms what they have already learned; provides clarification of the previous meetings, and strengthens their understanding, especially through face-to-face and computer-based learning opportunities. Thus, students are encouraged or required to actively contribute to classroom activities to get the positive outcomes needed to develop their language skills.

4. Interaction

a. Definition

The term “Interaction”, in a general sense, has been seen in many different definitions. In the social context, interaction refers to socialization. Sert (2015) sees interaction as a social phenomenon which people in, daily basis, employ verbal and non-verbal actions. Sert adds that because of this social communication with others, an individual is capable in many aspects of life such as teaching, learning, understanding, discussing, rejecting, agreeing, allowing, criticizing, and constantly negotiating.

According to Longman Dictionary, interaction has two interpretations. First, is a process by which two or more things affect each other. Second, the activity of talking to other people, working together with them, etc. In line with the previous definition, Wang, Elston, and Zhu (2010) define the term, in the broadest idea, as only signifying that objects or factors of research do not act independently.

b. Classroom Interaction

Understanding Classroom Interaction will not be comprehensive without looking at the definition of the place where the interaction happens. Brown in Nuriani (2018) defines the classroom as the place where teachers and students communicate and express their, emotions, or thoughts to each other in the form of verbal communication to attach certain goals. It is not solely a building, beyond that, it is a place where information is shared between teachers and students.

Accordingly, Tsui (2001), in the book The Cambridge guide to teaching English to speakers of other languages, states that the term classroom interaction refers to a form of interaction between the teacher and learners, and amongst the learners, that occurs in the classroom (p.120-125). Meanwhile, Rohmah (2017) indicates that classroom interaction refers to all kinds of classroom activities that can be conveyed in verbal and non-verbal interactions. Furthermore, Meng, as cited in Rohmah (2017), points out that verbal interactions are included written and oral interaction and non-verbal interaction covers all classroom conduct in which both students and teachers are not using words such as head-nodding and hand-raising.

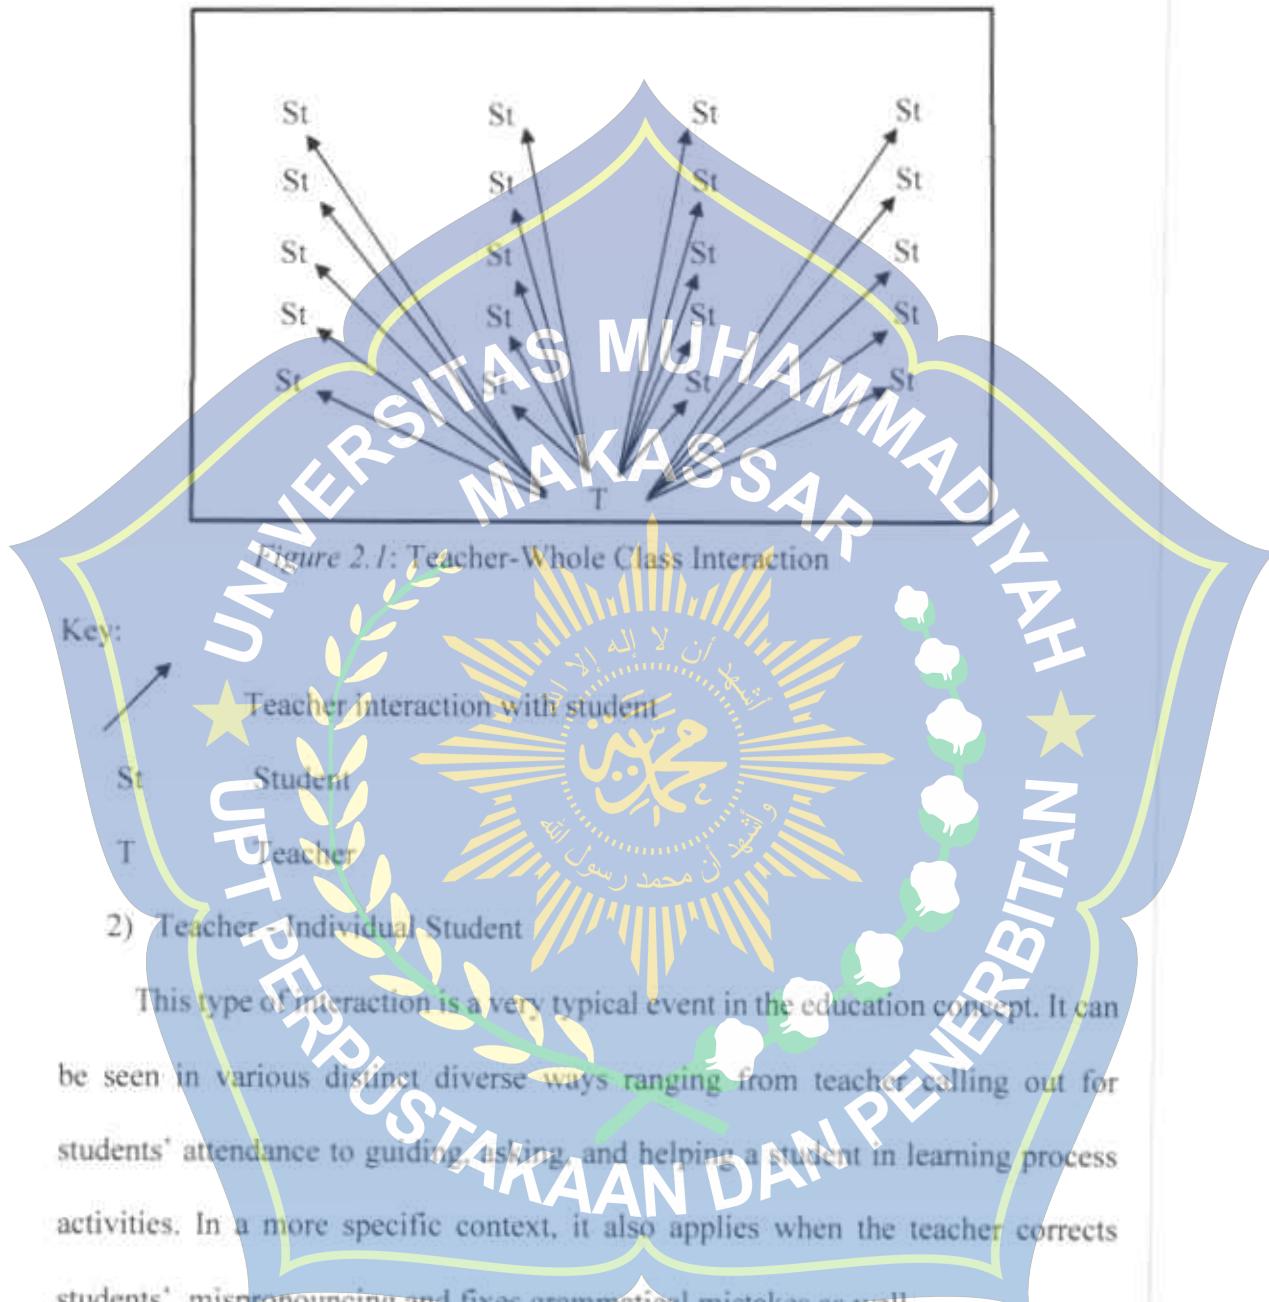

c. Kinds of Classroom Interaction in EFL

Asbah (2015) mentions that there are seven forms of classroom interactions in the English as Foreign Language class:

1) Teacher – Whole Class

This type of classroom interaction generally takes place at the beginning of the class meeting where the teacher greets and welcomes the class. A good teacher will also use this interaction to check students' readiness before the class begins. This also applies when teachers are about to give or are delivering the course material. However, this interaction can also happen at the end of the lesson. When the teacher gives general feedback for students' performances in the end of the lesson and some instructions for the next meeting. As shown in the diagram in

This type of interaction is a very typical event in the education concept. It can be seen in various distinct diverse ways ranging from teacher calling out for students' attendance to guiding, asking, and helping a student in learning process activities. In a more specific context, it also applies when the teacher corrects students' mispronouncing and fixes grammatical mistakes as well.

7) Student-Whole Class

This type is demonstrated when students present an oral presentation in front of the class. As a presenter, the student is required to speak not only to the teacher but also to the entire class. This is a very important process because a learner's self-esteem will be trained.

d. The Importances

Ideally, the teaching-learning process engages both teachers and students to interact either in face-to-face or virtual classes. Lestari (2018), in her study about classroom interaction in English-speaking classes, points out that interaction has an impact on teachers and students.

1) For Teacher

Classroom interaction has a huge impact on the teacher's side. It can be an effective method to evaluate and assess teachers' applied strategies in classes (Asbah, 2015). For example, teachers who merely deliver lesson without even trying to build interaction with students in the first place will mostly get a low rate of student interaction which lead to an uncooperative class climate. Accepting, hearing, and understanding students feeling will drive positive interaction that assists educators to develop students' potential (Lestari, 2018).

2) For students

Successful interaction can promote the positive involvement of students in class. Rohmah (2017) explains that students who are actively involved in direct classroom activities will receive a better learning process and, on the contrary, those who passively contribute in the classroom will have less likelihood to develop their language ability. Zacharis (2009) explains that, as a part of the social process, students need teachers' and classmates' support in the teaching and learning process. Additionally, Zacharis mentions that interaction is the main factor to maintain students' memory, expectation, and motivation. Besides, in a learning context, motivation influences the direction, intensity, perseverance, and quality of the learning behaviors in which students engage (Ambrose, 2010).

C. Conceptual Framework

The conceptual framework above shows the process of the research from the beginning until the collected data is obtained. It will be begun by deciding the population of the research which are some available classes at Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar. The researcher will first make sure that the classes consist of English students who are currently in their fourth semester at the university. Another specification is the students must have taken or been taught in virtual speaking classes. This is really important in order to dig deep into their perception of online-speaking-course participation and interaction. Furthermore, the researcher will use a random sampling technique to choose 10 students who are willing to participate from, at least, five different classes to be the sample of the research. Furthermore, participation and interaction are two major areas that the researcher will work on. All the samples are going to be asked some questions corresponding to the points throughout the interview.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

A. Research Method

This study employed a qualitative method to collect the data. The qualitative method is considered an appropriate approach in doing this research as it aims to gain students' perception of online speaking classes. Thorne (2000) argues that qualitative researchers are often more concerned about discovering knowledge about how people think and feel about the conditions in which they find themselves than they are in making judgments about whether those thoughts and feelings are valid.

Above all, this research also used secondary sources data to advocate all the arguments. The secondary data come from reputable journals and books collected online and offline, from libraries.

B. Research Variables

This research employed two types of variables namely independent and dependent variable. Independent variable represented by the students' perception, while dependent variable shown by students' participation and interaction in online speaking classes.

C. Subjects of the Research

The subject of this research were English Students in the academic year 2019/2020 of Muhammadiyah University of Makassar who have studied Speaking for Advance in a form of online learning. The researcher asked nine students from three different available classes as the study subjects to conduct the research. In order to obtain various information, the researcher took the subjects by using a random technique sample.

D. Research Instrument

The researcher used interviews as an instrument to collect the data. It contained the general question related to the problem statement and the purpose of this research. Therefore, the researcher determined the coverage questions by analyzing the potential issues that correlate with the research question. All theories in the previous chapter would be the underlying arguments that advocate the interview questions. In other words, the questions were derived by matching all ideas with English students' experiences who have been taught through the online speaking learning strategy.

E. Technique and Data Collection

In the manner of Interview as the way to collect the data, below were the planning to conduct the interview:

- a. The researcher prepared some questions for the students related to their experiences in online learning strategy.
- b. The researcher conducted the interview based on the question already prepared.
- c. The researcher recorded the students' answers related to their activities as their experience in online learning strategy, all participants were informed that their answers are part of their privacy and were secured and only were used for this academic research purposes.

In conducting the interview, the researcher communicated in an appropriate way by talking friendly and using an informal setting. Its purpose was to set up a comfortable conversation, so the interviewer smoothly dug deep into a lot of information about students' experiences. The researcher used Bahasa Indonesia to allow participants to convey their thoughts and emotions naturally and to eliminate the language barrier that may sidetrack participants' attention and concentration during the interview.

F. Data Analysis

In this research, the researcher used a qualitative data analysis which consists of three stages: reduction, data display, and drawing the conclusion Sugiyono (2013). Meanwhile, before conducting the three stages, the researcher translated the result of the interview. The researcher translated based on the language used by English students during conducting of the interview.

a. Data Reduction

The first step of data analysis was data reduction. Reduction refers to "selection" which is the process of cutting down the data occurring repeatedly and unwanted. Reducing the data means summarizing, choosing the primary things, focusing on the important things, and finding the idea that corresponds to the topic and the form. In this first stage, the researcher got the data from interviews with English students in the academic year 2019/2020 who are currently in the fourth semester. The result of the interview showed how English students experience the online speaking learning strategy. In this step, the irrelevant information was reduced and the important data was included.

b. Data Display

After data reduction, the next step in analyzing information was data display.

It is a process of showing data in the form of a table or essay in order to get a clearer and more understandable picture. In this research, the researcher used essays in displaying the data since essays could help the researcher elaborate the raw data into a piece of readable information. Readable data can guide the researcher to move to the next stage of data analysis and allow the reader to absorb the result of the interview. The data was displayed was about English students' perception in online speaking learning classes particularly the Speaking for the Advance course. Their experiences in learning the subject major were highlighted in two major points namely students' participation in class and classroom interaction.

c. Drawing Conclusion

In this last step data analysis was drawing conclusions. Here, the researcher began to see what is the data. The researcher examined all entries with the same code and then merges these categories and finds the connection among the categories. Then, it continued to tell the stories and make connections among stories. Finally, the researcher got the result and conclusion of the research.

CHAPTER IV

FINDINGS AND DISCUSSION

This chapter consists of two sections: the findings of the research and the discussion. The findings present the result of data analysis and the discussion describes the arguments and interpretation of the research findings.

A. Research Findings

The findings of this research were collected based on the interview that took place from July 15th to July 18th, 2022. The interview was conducted in two different forms namely face-to-face and virtual interviews via Zoom. In doing the online interview there are a few obstacles such as an unstable internet connection that imposed both the interviewer and participant to restate their statements. In addition, there are interview recordings that did not sound and required the interviewer to repeat the interview. Despite those challenges, the researcher managed to discover the data that was needed. Below are the findings of the research:

1. Participation in Online Speaking Class

a. Attendance

Students are entailed to pay attention and follow the class schedule until the end of the semester. Students' presence in class is also part of active participation. Attending class is essential because it allows teachers to track time tracking students' progress and make better decisions that can help them do better in the next class and in their future careers.

Extract 1

S1: In online classes, we can follow it from home, therefore we have no reason not to attend. Therefore I think Online classes increase my presence.

Extract 2

S3: Alhamdulillah my attendance in the online speaking class was good as expected

Extract 3

S4: In my opinion, it will be improved because there is no such thing as being late, then you can carry out learning from home, you don't have to bother going to campus and just stay at home.

Extract 4

S7: My attendance in an online speaking class is 100%. I never miss a class.

The research interview found that all participants stated that they did not have problems with their attendance and had stunning attendance rates in the online speaking course. These could happen due to some factors. S1 explained that since the class is virtual, as a student, he could join the class from the comfort of his house's living room. In line with that, S4 expressed that she did not have to go to campus to attend the class since the course was conducted on the internet. Because of that, she believed that students cannot be late. S3 and S7 said that during the semester, they had shown incredible attendance rates and even did not miss a single class meeting.

b. Preparation

Active participation does not occur solely during the class, it also can be seen in students' preparation before the class. Good preparation before the class is also part of active engagement. On the other hand, preparation is a clear indication that learners are ready to receive the information.

Extract 5

S8: The first thing I prepared was the place where I made sure the place had a stable network, then the second one the day before the speaking lesson, I studied the material beforehand. Third, dress neatly.

Extract 6

S2: Lecturer prepares games and quizzes

Extract 7

S9: In my opinion, it is the same, namely preparing the internet network and also for lecturers, usually lecturers prepare material and also for presentation groups preparing powerpoints.

The preparation of the students varies ranging from making sure they had a good internet connection to studying last week's material for the lesson. S1 mentioned that the number one preparation was finding a good place in which the internet was good. Although in online speaking class the students did not meet the teachers physically, wearing a polite and neat dress such as a shirt also needed and was counted as part of the preparation. On the other hand, S2 and S9 said that not only students but also lecturers or teachers also prepared the class by providing subject contents, games, and quizzes.

c. Contribution to Discussion

Contributing to the class discussion is an essential factor in the teaching-learning process. It helps establish a positive atmosphere in the classroom and builds students' confidence. In general, context, contributing to discussion means that students willingly speak up by asking questions, commenting, and responding. Discussion is an effective strategy to improve students' creative thinking ability as well as their critical thinking. On the other side, EFL speaking classes can help learners to encourage their confidence and train their brains to be familiar with English. This is an obvious feature of active learning that a student that does not attractively talk or participate in the discussion is most likely considered a passive learner.

Extract 8

S6: I am personally neutral because I am sometimes active and sometimes passive. I can be active in learning if I understand the discussion and if not then I will be less active.

Extract 9

S2: I am active during the question and answer session and also actively provide feedback and questions.

Extract 10

S3: In the classroom, I will not speak unless my lecturer appoints me or mention my name and ask me to speak up.

During the online speaking class, five out of ten participants described themselves as active students. Active students refer to the ones who, during the class, actively spoke and participated in classroom discussions. In the speaking class context, the students asked questions and gave opinions or suggestions. As S2 stated that answering questions, giving feedback, and providing answers were among the things that she did in the online speaking class. Besides, the other five students put themselves in the "middle" or "neutral" level when it comes to classroom discussion. S6 mentioned that this happened because they did not have an adequate understanding of the material.

d. Contribution to Group Work

A classroom is a place where a group of individuals needs to work side by side in reaching the class goals. This goal can be acquired by cooperatively working together as a group. Teachers, some of the time, divide and assign students into several small groups of work. The aim of group work is to shape students' teamwork skills. And over time, it will develop students' communication and collaboration competencies which also, surely affects students' tremendous academic success.

Extract 11

S5: In this online speaking class, it is more dominated by group assignments in the form of presentation assignments

Extract 12

S8: Personally, the group work I have ever done is a presentation group assignment with the topic "conditional sentence"

Extract 13

S9: I help collect the discussion of material or the content of the PowerPoint presentation slides

Based on the interview, the majority of the students stated that in the online speaking course they were asked to make group presentation project. S5 mentioned that this is one of the group work that was given in this course. In this presentation project, the students were given a specific topic to present. S8 said that, in her case, she and her group were asked to make a presentation about "conditional sentences". Furthermore, in working on the group work, students were required to give their contributions. S9 explained that his task was gathering information about the topic and putting it together in the slide presentation.

e. Communication Skills

There are many varieties of communication skills starting from asking and giving questions to delivering an oral presentation in front of the class. Proper communication skills promote students' participation in the classroom and help them to sharpen their capabilities in responding to others' ideas and defending their own points of view. This can drive students to extend their knowledge, understanding, and interpretation. As a result, building decent communication in class can lead to high-class interaction and academic achievement.

Extract 14

S1: In my opinion, my communication skills have improved because in the online speaking class I have better confidence than in the offline class. Maybe this is because I only talk in front of the cellphone.

Extract 15

S2: The method used by the lecturer in this online speaking class is very good, namely using the discussion method. In addition, after the presentation of the material by the group, the lecturer gave an explanation as a booster.

Extract 16

S4: In my opinion, you can improve our speaking because if our presentation is in English, of course, and if the presentation is done, we prepare before we present so that the presentation can run smoothly.

Students' answers depicted that online speaking classes helped them enhance their speaking and communication skills in some ways. S1 said that the main reason for this was he felt more confident when speaking to the phone screen rather than in a face-to-face setting. Besides, S4 stated that doing a presentation in English forces her to practice again and again before performing in the class. Along with that, the teaching method also played a significant role in shaping students' communication skills. S2 confirmed that presentation and discussion gave the students to have the opportunity to speak more in the classroom.

2. Classroom Interaction in Online Speaking Class

a. Student-to-Student Interaction

This peer interaction can be found when the discussion is started between a student and a student. This interaction can be seen not only in but also outside the classroom. Within the class, student-student can be seen in form of peer feedback, a strategy that allows a student to give her or his opinion to another student.

Extract 17

S2: Interaction between students occurs in a question and answer session where at this time the group presenting the material will provide an opportunity for classmates to ask something related to the topic that has been presented

Extract 18

S4: Until now, the communication was via Whatsapp, not via Zoom or Gmeet like this, because most of the lecturers spoke

Extract 19

S6: In my opinion, online speaking class is not a good medium in building communication between students. This is because sometimes there are network constraints that make the communication not run well.

Extract 20

S7: In my opinion, this online speaking class has not yet reached the level to build chemistry or close relationships with other individuals because it is still held online so our interest in getting acquainted is still not different from offline classes because we meet face-to-face so there is intense communication.

All participants stated that there are two ways that students communicate in online speaking classes which are verbally or in written format. S4 mentioned that students text one another via group Whatsapp application and communicate orally through Zoom or Google meet during the virtual class. S2 claimed that the oral interaction took place in a question and answer session where at this time the group presenting the material will provide an opportunity for classmates to ask something related to the topic that has been presented. Although there is an interaction during the virtual class, six out of ten students argued that online speaking forms did not effective in building student-to-student communication. S6 suggested that in this type of class, the interaction between students is restricted by the stability of the internet connection. In addition to this, S7 said that students did have a strong interest to get to know each other because students did not have sufficient time to talk.

b. Teacher-to-Whole Class

Extract 21

S5: In learning, lecturers use class discussion methods and lectures.

This type of classroom interaction generally takes place at the beginning of the class meeting where the teacher greets and welcomes the class. A good teacher will also use this interaction to check students' readiness before the class begins. This also applies when teachers are about to give or are delivering the course material. However, this interaction can also happen at the end of the lesson. When the teacher gives general feedback for students' performances at the end of the lesson and some instructions for the next meeting.

Extract 23

S2: Lecturers give instructions and communicate with students using two applications, namely Zoom in verbal form and Whatsapp group to give instructions in written form.

Extract 24

S9: Lecturers communicate using zoom. In addition, if the lecturer is unable to attend, the lecturer usually gives assignments through Google Classroom.

Ten out of ten participants stated that in this online speaking class, the lecturer present the subject material verbally using the web-based site Zoom or Gmeet and employed lecture and classroom discussion methods to attract students' engagement. S5 said, "In learning, lecturers use class discussion methods and lectures". Apart from this, S2 stated that instructions were given through Whatsapp in written form and also verbally using the Voice note feature. Moreover, S9 confessed that when the lecturers were not able to attend the class, they will send tasks through Google Classroom.

c. Teacher-to-Individual

This type of interaction is a very typical event in the education concept. It can be seen in various distinct diverse ways ranging from teacher calling out for students' attendance to guiding, asking, and helping a student in learning process activities. In a more specific context, it also applies when the teacher corrects students' mispronouncing and fixes grammatical mistakes as well.

Extract 25

S6: Usually feedback is given individually. In an online speaking class, when a student explains something and makes a mistake such as mispronouncing, the lecturer will provide feedback or corrections to the student.

Extract 26

S1: Before starting the class, the lecturer asked the students to open or turn on the camera. The teacher will mention their name to turn on their camera.

Extract 27

S8: The first is that the lecturer takes attendance first, asks how things are and asks about the readiness of the group presenting at the meeting

There are some ways of teacher-to-individual student communication that happened in online speaking class. S6 explained that most of the time, constructive correction is given individually. In an online speaking class, when a student orally presents something and makes a mistake such as mispronouncing, the lecturer will provide feedback or corrections to the student. Another form of teacher-to-individual interaction can be seen when the teacher mentions the name on the attendance list as stated by S8. Besides, at the beginning of the class, S1 expressed that the lecturer asked students to turn on the camera and if there were still students who did not open it, the teacher will call their names individually.

d. Student-to-Teacher

This interaction refers to the student's initiation to communicate with the teacher in form of asking questions, responding to ideas, giving points of view, etc.

Most of the time this initiation can be identified at the end of the meeting when a student approaches the teacher before leaving the class. Teachers have to pay attention to this kind of interaction since not all students are comfortable presenting their opinions in front of the class.

Extract 28

S2: There is a "raise hand" feature in the Zoom application which is very helpful for interacting with lecturers during class

Extract 29

S4: In interacting with lecturers, students ask more questions during virtual learning

Extract 30

S9: If I have questions, I personally immediately ask the lecturer if there are things that I don't understand in the online speaking class.

It can be concluded from the interview that all students have the same responses that the way they communicated with their lecturer was directly asking questions and clarifying something. S4 mentioned that in the virtual form of speaking class students ask more questions during the class. S9 claimed that, in his case, if students had something in mind, they can inquire about something during the virtual class. S2 specifically said that there is a feature that helped students to ask questions in online speaking class namely the "raise hand" symbol. This sign allowed students to communicate with lecturers without producing distracting or unwanted sounds.

e. Teacher-to-Group

This interaction is used when a teacher talks to a certain group of students within the class. In order to train students' teamwork ability, teachers divide the class into several small groups of students sometimes. While doing it, teachers have to utilize the teacher-groupwork communication method to handle the groups.

Extract 31

S2: Before the group presentation, the lecturer checks the students' readiness by asking the presentation group's readiness. After the presentation, the lecturer provided reinforcement of the material that had just been presented and gave input or feedback to the presentation group.

Extract 31

S9: Lecturers communicate with the workgroup only when learning takes place, namely through Google Meet or Zoom. Before the presentation and after the presentation. If there are deficiencies in the presentation group, the lecturer will complete them by explaining these deficiencies.

Students explained that there was a group that present a topic with a presentation in every single meeting. When the presentation was done the lecturer will give feedback to the presentation group first before allowing other students to ask questions to the group. S9 explained that the way teachers communicate with the workgroup in this online speaking class was by giving feedback to the performing group. The feedback can be related to the content of the presentation or the group performance. In addition, the teacher did not solely communicate with the group after their presentation but also before the presentation. S2 stated that before the group presented their slide shows, the teacher will first ask about the readiness of the group and ask whether the group members were already entered the class or not.

f. Student-to-Whole Class

This type is demonstrated when students present an oral presentation in front of the class. As a presenter, the student is required to speak not only to the teacher but also to the entire class. This is a very important process because a learner's self-esteem will be trained. It also can be identified when the students respond to a classroom discussion by answering questions or giving additional information.

Extract

S2: I am active during the question and answer session and also actively provide feedback and questions. So I directly express my thoughts verbally during the class discussion

Extract

S8: During the question and answer session, I only asked or expressed my opinion directly and verbally in this online speaking class. But before that, I gave my appreciation to the group who presented.

Students had good experiences in expressing their ideas or thoughts and talking to the whole class during the presentation. All participants of this research stated that the way that they spoke in front of the class was verbal during the virtual class. S2 expressed that she was active during the question and answer session and also actively provided feedback and questions. "So I directly express my thoughts verbally during the class discussion" she added. On the other side, S8 suggested that before that, she gave appreciation to the group who presented first, and, during the question and answer session, she expressed her opinion directly and verbally in this online speaking class.

g. Student-to-Work Group

Collaboration can be seen in teamwork where students hand in hand working together to complete a certain assignment. In doing this, the class must be divided into small groups. When the class is split into several small student groups, students, within the group, are forced to socialize and have to communicate with each other. This will open the possibility for a student to talk to all group members of hers. This interaction simply portrays the Student-Group members' interaction. This research, it is depicted in the extract below:

Extract

S5: Communication in groups is using the Whatsapp application, which is used to discuss using text and also voice notes. Not only that the presentation appearance using Google Meet

Extract

S6: In my group, we use Whatsapp groups to share tasks and use Google meet to simulate presentations one day before presentation

Generally, all students said that the communication within the group is divided into two ways, firstly using Whatsapp Groups it is used to text in the group tasks and also to collect data or material as stated by S5. Secondly, a day before the presentation day, the group can conduct a presentation simulation using Google Meet. This assisted the group to have a good presentation as stated by S6.

B. Discussion

This research aims to find out two major things about students' perception of online speaking classes at the English department of Universitas Muhammadiyah Makassar which is stated in the problem statements. First, students' perception of online participation in English Speaking classes, second students' perception of online interaction in English Speaking classes. In this part, the researcher gives further interpretation and discussion as follows.

1. Students' perception of online participation in English speaking classes

Firstly, students' perception of participation in terms of attendance in online speaking classes. The interview, it revealed that online speaking classes did not hinder students from joining the class. Students did not see virtual class as a problem instead, they felt that this course ease them to achieve or have a better or even perfect attendance rate.

This amazing academic performance could be happened because of some reasons. First, due to the online form of class, students joined the class from their homes or from anywhere they wanted. Secondly, students did not have to leave the house to catch the bus or go to campus. Therefore they did not have to worry about being late or running late. Consequently, students can have consistent academic accomplishments and maintain them until the end of the semester.

Secondly, students' perception of participation in terms of preparation in online speaking classes. The majority of the students prepared themselves before entering the virtual class. Even though both lecturers and students did not meet physically. Students consciously considered that preparation is an important thing to do. This is because the preparation can support students' participation during the online classes. Students are not the only ones who prepared teachers also needed to set some things in conducting the class.

There are several things that students and lecturers arranged in order to have good virtual teaching-learning experiences. A steady internet connection was the number one instrument to be checked. This was essential as it was the thing that connected students and lecturers. When it comes to material, students needed to brush up on the previous week's lesson since the teachers reviewed them before continuing to the next chapter. For lecturers, they have to prepare subject material every single week. Additionally, as a manner value, students were required to wear neat shirts for male and polite dresses for female students. From those explanation, it can be concluded that students prepared themselves to achieve a rewarding online speaking class experience.

Third, students' perception of participation in terms of contribution to the discussion in online speaking class. From the interview, it is shown that students were partially active in the class discussion and it happened due to some factors such as the students being actively involved because they has already known the material or they had a sufficient understanding of the given lesson. And for some, they remained calm because they did not know what the teachers were talking about.

Fourth, students' perception of participation in terms of contribution to group work in online speaking classes. It was found in the research finding that students were cooperative in finishing the group work and were collectively collaborative.

It can be seen from the interview responses that students participating. The participation varies ranging from collecting topic information to being the leader who organizes group members and making the slides show.

Another crucial point of working in a group was the communication in the group in online speaking class. Students managed to deal with this by utilizing the advance of technology. Whatsapp application and Zoom or Gmeet are the media that students use to brainstorm and exchange ideas. All of the responses explained that students were able to perform stunning contributions to the workgroup.

Fifth, students' perception of participation in terms of contribution to group work in online speaking classes. When students' speaking skills improved, students' communication skills also improved. The main reason behind this is, students felt more confident in expressing their thoughts in online speaking classes because they thought there were no other students in the room watching them directly. This helped students to be braver in talking not only to the teacher but also to the class. The last reason was the group presentation that was given by the lecturers. The presentation train students' communication skills to speak in front of the class presenting the topic material. The research findings discovered that the majority of the students felt that their speaking and communication skill was improved.

2. Students' perception of online interaction in English speaking classes

First, students' perception of interaction in terms of student-to-student in online speaking classes. From the interview, it can be concluded that interaction between students took place during the class, particularly in the question and answer session where the students had the opportunity to ask questions, express opinions, and give comments. Although students had the chance to interact with each other, students did not satisfy with the amount of time they gained from the classes.

Furthermore, students felt that online speaking class was not a good medium to build student-to-student communication. People are less attracted to search more about their classmates since they did not meet physically. Meeting someone on the internet is completely different than meeting directly. Therefore, the communication was not intense.

Second, students' perception of interaction in terms of teacher-to-whole class in online speaking class. It was found from the research findings that all participants were pleased with the way lecturers communicated and delivered the lessons. In online speaking context, the lecturers used the classroom discussion method which imposed students to speak and express their statements.

In terms of communication, lecturers utilize the Whatsapp application to inform the class that she would be able to conduct a class or not. Besides, in a few cases, when the lecturers were not able to join the class, they will leave an assignment on Google Classroom. These were successfully effective to build and maintain teacher-to-whole class interaction.

Third, students' perception of interaction in terms of teacher-to-whole class in online speaking class. As explained in the research findings, this type of interaction can be seen in three different ways. Firstly, lecturers individually correcting on a student's mistakes such as slightly mispronouncing. Secondly, just before the class began, the lecturers asked students to turn on their devices' cameras individually. Lastly, as a part of checking students' readiness, lecturers mentioned students' names one by one as they went through all the attendance lists.

These communications constituted constructive feedback and can be perceived as supportive strategies in making sure that lecturers not only pay attention to the whole class but also to an individual student. This is really important in the teaching-learning process because some students need special attention. In addition, helpful suggestions can motivate a student to enthusiastically participating and engage in the class.

Fourth, students' perception of interaction in terms of students-to-teacher class in online speaking classes. Based on the interview responses, this study discovered that this type of interaction only occurred during the class meeting where students had the chance to verbally ask questions or clarify something to the lecturers.

Since student-to-teacher interaction is a student initiative communication to the lecturers, it is essential for both students and lecturers to preserve this interaction. In this case, the lecturers of online speaking classes performed essential interactions which built students' trust.

Fifth, students' perception of interaction in terms of teacher-to-group in online speaking class. The data showed that lecturers communicate with the work group before and after the group presented their work. The lecturers have done very excellent work. Workgroup was made to train students' teamwork skills but during the project, they need instruction before doing the assignment and also they need feedback after they presented the slides show. That is the underlying point of work group. It can be concluded that the students received helpful and necessary instruction and fundamental feedback.

Sixth, students' perception of interaction in terms of student-to-whole class in online speaking class. The data discovered that all students were enjoying expressing their thoughts verbally in class. they also had the opportunity to speak to the whole class through a presentation. This is a clear indication that the students had the positive feelings on the way that they use in stating their ideas in online speaking class.

Verbally expressing their ideas was fundamentally essential in learning a language, particularly in online speaking classes. It trained students' in oral communication and enhanced students' confidence. Talking to the whole class is a challenging thing to do but rewarding and feasible. Furthermore, in doing the presentation students were forced to speak in English and practiced over and over before the presentation day. The key is most students cannot express their thought because they have not given their brains enough time to practice English. In this class, students experienced a good and supportive learning environment.

Seventh, students' perception of interaction in terms of student-to-work groups in online speaking classes. The students' answers clearly explained that the students creatively and cooperatively with other group members. They communicated through the Whatsapp application to share jobs and gather the information that they needed. Not only that, but they also utilize Zoom or Gmeet to hold presentation simulations two or one days before the presentation day. This is the combination of communication and preparation in the group. Therefore, It can be said that students had developed their teamwork skills properly.

B. Suggestions

After gaining students' perception of online speaking class, researcher found that there are some aspects that need to be evaluated and need to be taken more seriously. Consequently, there are suggestions for English lecturers and future researchers.

1. English Lecturers

- a. English lecturers have a significant role in controlling and conducting online speaking classes. The teachers should give an adequate amount of time to students to speak in class rather than teachers dominating the class.
- b. Based on the research findings, some students do not like the lecture teaching method, students feel that online speaking class improve their speaking and communication skill through classroom discussions and presentation group projects.

2. Future Researchers

- a. Future researchers can examine other education levels such as senior or junior high school.
- b. To get data from the research from distinct perspective, try different research methods such as quantitative or mixed method.

Introduction

Thank you so much for your time and for your willingness to participate in this research a little bit information about my research so I'm going to find out students' perception of online speaking class. Particularly about student participation in the class and also classroom interaction I have prepared some question and I have divided my question into two types the first is the participation in classroom student participation and the second one is question related to classroom interaction. I will give it in English. But the answer can be in Indonesian. The question that I want to assess is a response or response to an online speaking class, not about English language skills.

R: My first question is why do you think online speaking class and increase or decrease your attendance?

(Nama saya Amal terima kasih banyak atas waktunya terima kasih banyak atas kesediaan Anda untuk membantu saya dalam pertanyaan penelitian saya dan menjawab pertanyaan Anda adalah mengapa menurut Anda kelas berbicara online dan menambah atau mengurangi kehadiran Anda.)

S1: In online classes we can follow it from home, therefore we have no reason not to attend. Therefore I think Online classes increase my presence.

(Di kelas online kita bisa mengikutinya dari rumah, oleh karena itu kita tidak punya alasan untuk tidak hadir. Oleh karena itu saya pikir kelas Online meningkatkan kehadiran saya.)

R: The next question, what are the things that support or prevent students from attending the Online speaking class?

(Pertanyaan selanjutnya, hal-hal apa saja yang mendukung atau menghambat siswa mengikuti kelas online speaking?)

S1: The things that hinder are unstable internet, laziness, and maybe the students involved have organizational activities and sometimes students are more concerned with their organizational activities than their class. Then the thing that supports that is that online classes can be accessed anywhere.

(Hal-hal yang menghambat adalah internet yang tidak stabil, kemalasan, dan mungkin siswa yang terlibat memiliki kegiatan organisasi dan terkadang siswa lebih memprioritaskan kegiatan organisasinya daripada kelasnya. Kemudian yang mendukung adalah kelas online bisa diakses dimana saja.)

R: As we know, before learning sometimes we prepare ourselves. The question is how do you prepare before taking an online speaking class?

(Seperti yang kita ketahui, sebelum belajar terkadang kita mempersiapkan diri. Pertanyaannya adalah bagaimana persiapan Anda sebelum mengikuti kelas berbicara online?)

S1: The first thing I did was check my internet network. Because I come from a village area, so when I want to join an online class I will go to a place that has a stable network. In addition, I prepared books and stationery.

(Hal pertama yang saya lakukan adalah memeriksa jaringan internet saya. Karena saya berasal dari daerah pedesaan, maka ketika saya ingin mengikuti kelas online saya akan pergi ke tempat yang jaringannya stabil. Selain itu, saya menyiapkan buku dan alat tulis.)

R: What things do you, your lecturers, and your classmates do before and after learning.

(Hal-hal apa yang Anda, dosen, dan teman sekelas Anda lakukan sebelum dan sesudah belajar.)

S1: My lecturer prepares learning materials and also an internet connection. Usually my lecturer notifies me first if he has a network that is not supported and asks for his class to be moved to another schedule. In addition, my lecturer prepares a project that will be carried out for the next semester.

(Dosen saya menyiapkan materi pembelajaran dan juga koneksi internet. Biasanya dosen saya memberi tahu saya terlebih dahulu jika dia memiliki jaringan yang tidak mendukung dan meminta kelasnya dipindahkan ke jadwal lain. Selain itu, dosen saya menyiapkan proyek yang akan dikerjakan untuk semester berikutnya.)

R: Regarding the Speaking class, what type of student are you? is it active or passive?

(Mengenai kelas Berbicara, tipe mahasiswa seperti apa Anda? itu aktif atau pasif?)

S1: For me it depends on the learning material. If I master the material then I will be active and vice versa, if I do not understand the material then I will be a passive student.

(Bagi saya itu tergantung pada materi pembelajaran. Jika saya menguasai materi maka saya akan aktif dan sebaliknya, jika saya tidak memahami materi maka saya akan menjadi siswa yang pasif.)

R: What things motivate you or prevent you from actively participating in class discussions?

(Hal-hal apa yang memotivasi Anda atau menghalangi Anda berpartisipasi aktif dalam diskusi kelas?)

S1: The thing that hinders me or makes me feel inferior is my grammar or speaking as well as my ability and understanding of the lesson, this makes me less confident. The thing that makes me excited in class discussions is my curiosity, besides that I like debate, therefore I think online speaking can help me.

(Hal yang menghambat saya atau membuat saya minder adalah grammar atau speaking saya serta kemampuan dan pemahaman saya terhadap pelajaran, hal ini membuat saya kurang percaya diri. Hal yang membuat saya bersemangat dalam diskusi kelas adalah rasa ingin tahu saya, selain itu saya suka debat, oleh karena itu saya pikir berbicara online dapat membantu saya.)

R: What are some examples of group assignments that you have done or completed in an online speaking class?

(Apa saja contoh tugas kelompok yang telah Anda lakukan atau selesaikan di kelas berbicara online?)

(Kendalanya adalah komunikasi, dalam kerja kelompok ada yang tidak bekerja, selain itu jaringan menghambat komunikasi dan juga dalam penyajian presentasi.)

R: In your opinion, what is the reason why there are people who do not contribute to the group?

(Karena kemampuan orang tersebut dan kembali ke tanggung jawab masing-masing.)

(Menurut pendapat saya, kemampuan komunikasi saya meningkat karena di kelas berbicara online saya memiliki kepercayaan diri yang lebih baik daripada kelas offline. mungkin ini karena saya hanya berbicara di depan handphone.)

R: How is the communication process between students in the online speaking class?

(Bagaimana proses komunikasi antar siswa di kelas online speaking?)

S1: In general, communication between students is not very good, for example there are students who are in the same class but don't know each other, maybe only know their names but don't know where they come from and so on. In addition, in the online speaking class, the lecturer dominates learning so there is no time to communicate with classmates. sometimes in this class communication is established before the lecturer joins the virtual class, but this interaction is only carried out by a few people.

(Pada umumnya komunikasi antar siswa kurang baik, misalnya ada siswa yang satu kelas tetapi tidak saling mengenal, mungkin hanya tahu namanya tetapi tidak tahu dari mana asalnya dan lain sebagainya. Selain itu di kelas online speaking dosen mendominasi pembelajaran sehingga tidak ada waktu untuk berkomunikasi dengan teman sekelas. terkadang di kelas ini komunikasi terjalin sebelum dosen bergabung dengan kelas virtual namun interaksi ini hanya dilakukan oleh beberapa orang saja.)

R: Why do you think this online speaking class is a good or bad medium in building communication between students?

(Menurut Anda mengapa kelas berbicara online ini merupakan media yang baik atau buruk dalam membangun komunikasi antar siswa?)

S1: In my opinion, this online speaking class is a bad medium in communicating with other students because in this online speaking class we cannot meet in person. therefore our communication is less or not intense.

(Menurut saya, kelas online speaking ini merupakan media yang buruk dalam berkomunikasi dengan siswa lain karena di kelas online speaking ini kita tidak bisa bertemu secara langsung. oleh karena itu komunikasi kami kurang atau tidak intens.)

R: The next question, sometimes the lecturer gives input or feedback in class. How does the lecturer convey the feedback?

(Pertanyaan selanjutnya, terkadang dosen memberikan masukan atau feedback di kelas. Bagaimana cara dosen menyampaikan umpan balik?)

S1: Feedback is usually given after the group presentation. And begins by providing input or feedback to the group that has just presented the material. After that, the lecturer gives a team of materials or general reinforcement of the material to the whole class.

(Umpam balik biasanya diberikan setelah presentasi kelompok. Dan dimulai dengan memberikan masukan atau umpan balik kepada kelompok yang baru saja mempresentasikan materi. Setelah itu, dosen memberikan tim materi atau penguatan umum materi kepada seluruh kelas.)

R: Why is the online speaking class a good place to interact with lecturers?

(Mengapa kelas berbicara online menjadi tempat yang baik untuk berinteraksi dengan dosen?)

S1: In my opinion, online speaking classes are not a good place to interact with lecturers. the form of communication that exists is only in the form of students asking questions to lecturers after the presentation.

(Menurut saya, online speaking class bukanlah tempat yang baik untuk berinteraksi dengan dosen. bentuk komunikasi yang terjalin hanya berupa mahasiswa mengajukan pertanyaan kepada dosen setelah presentasi.)

R: During class discussions, what things do I support students to express their opinions in online speaking classes?

(Jaringan dan aplikasi yang memudahkan komunikasi bahkan jarak jauh.)

R: How do lecturers deliver learning materials in online speaking classes?

(Bagaimana cara dosen menyampaikan materi pembelajaran di kelas online speaking?)

S1: The delivery of material by the lecturer in the classroom is by using a discussion class where the class is divided into several groups, then each group gets a topic of discussion and then presents it alternately during the semester. Besides that, in practice, each group that presents is finished, the lecturer will explain the material by providing reinforcement and explanations that aim to complete the group's presentation.

(Penyampaian materi oleh dosen di dalam kelas adalah dengan menggunakan kelas diskusi dimana kelas dibagi menjadi beberapa kelompok, kemudian masing-masing kelompok mendapatkan topik diskusi dan kemudian mempresentasikannya secara bergantian selama satu semester. Selain itu dalam praktik setiap kelompok yang mempresentasikan sudah selesai, dosen akan menjelaskan materi dengan memberikan penguatan dan penjelasan yang bertujuan untuk melengkapi presentasi kelompok.)

R: In your opinion, why online speaking class is a good form of class in learning speaking skills?

(Menurut Anda, mengapa kelas berbicara online merupakan bentuk kelas yang baik dalam mempelajari keterampilan berbicara?)

S1: In my opinion, online speaking class is a form of class that is not effective in learning speaking, this is because in this class students do not practice enough and also listen more than practice speaking.

(Menurut saya kelas online speaking merupakan bentuk kelas yang kurang efektif dalam pembelajaran berbicara, hal ini dikarenakan di kelas ini siswa kurang berlatih dan juga lebih banyak mendengarkan daripada berlatih berbicara.)
