Sahrul, 10525030515. “Analisis Syariah Dalam Penangguhan Pembayaran Utang Petani dalam Jual Beli Pupuk di Desa Bontolempangan Kabupaten Gowa (Analisis Hukum Islam)” (supervised by Saidin Mansyur and Hasanuddin).

Buying and selling in accordance with Islamic law is a sale and purchase that does not contain elements of fraud, disguise and usury, as well as other things that can cause losses to other parties. In connection with this description, this study aims to reveal how the practice of buying and selling agricultural fertilizers with a debt payment suspension system is analyzed from Islamic law.

This research method uses a qualitative approach with data obtained from field observations, interviews and literature studies based on the Al-Qur'an and As-Sunnah. The data obtained were then analyzed by normative descriptive method.

The results of this study, are that the sale and purchase with the suspension of debt payments made by the people of Bontolempangan Village, Gowa Regency, is legal because it is in accordance with the terms and pillars of the sale and purchase. This practice does not contain elements of persecution, because both parties benefit from each other. The sale and purchase of agricultural fertilizers with a deferred payment system also brings more benefits than the disadvantages. In addition, the practice of buying and selling agricultural fertilizers with a deferred system of debt payments is very helpful from an economic perspective for farmers.
