ABSTRACT

Ahmad Gazali Alwi, 2025. Social Dynamics of Families of Former Online Gambling Offenders (A Narrative Study of Former Online Gambling Offenders in Wonomulyo District, Sidodadi Subdistrict, Polewali Mandar Regency). Supervised by Kaharuddin and Jamaluddin.

This study aimed to examine: (1) the changes in social functions within the family after one of its members ceased to be involved in online gambling, and (2) how the status of "former online gambling offender" is constructed by family members and the social environment. This research employed a descriptive qualitative method. Informants were selected using purposive sampling, with a total of five participants. Data collection techniques included observation, interviews, and documentation, while data validation was carried out through member checking. Data were analyzed using the stages of data reduction, data presentation, and conclusion drawing.

The findings reveal that changes in family social functions after a member stopped engaging in online gambling include disturbances in affective, economic, and social role functions during the period of gambling involvement. Following the cessation of gambling, families underwent a process of recovery and adaptation. Furthermore, the meaning of the status of "former online gambling offender" as constructed by family members and the surrounding community was associated with the successful restoration of family functions. However, the process of forming a new social identity in the wider environment has not been fully achieved, as it is influenced by emotional support, positive symbolic interaction, and the consistency of the individual in demonstrating genuine behavioral change within the community.
