

ABSTRACT

ST. Nurjannah Dewi, 2018. This final project is about An Analysis of Students' Speaking Anxiety (A Descriptive Study at the Eleventh Grade of SMA Negeri 10 Makassar) . A thesis of English Department, the Faculty of Teachers Training and Education, Makassar Muhammadiyah University, guided by Erwin Akib and Herlina Daddi.

This research aimed in finding out the student's speaking anxiety at speaking English

The research applied descriptive research design. The sample of the research was one classes with 31 students by using purposive sampling technique. The instrument of the research were questionnaire. The population of the research was the eleventh grade students of SMA Negeri 10 Makassar and the number of sample was 31 students.

The result of research about students' anxiety at the eleventh grade students' of SMA Negeri 10 Makassar showed in the following explanation. Based on the data analysis of students' speaking anxiety found that there are two factors of anxiety that is External and Internal factor. In internal factor the number of lack of confidence was highest then all factors. It means that lack of confidence was the most internal factors that influenced students' anxiety in speaking English in While External factor the number of embarrassment was the higher then all factors. It means that embarrassment was the most factors that influenced students' anxiety in speaking English.

Keywords : Speaking, Anxiety, External factor, Internal factor.